Karnataka to begin CET allotment sans NEET results

Government says students' admissions should not suffer because of ongoing NEET uncertainty nationwide

BENGALURU

Karnataka has decided to proceed with counselling and seat allotment for engineering and other professional courses without waiting for the National Eligibility cum Entrance Test (NEET) results amid the ongoing paper leak controversy.

Higher Education Minister Dr MC Sudhakar announced the decision during a Youth Congress protest against the alleged NEET paper leak on Thursday.

He said counselling for engineering and other non-medical professional courses will begin immediately after the Common Entrance Test (CET) results are announced, likely next week.

Until now, Karnataka conducted combined counselling for medical, engineering and allied professional courses as students generally appeared for both CET and NEET examinations. Based on their merit ranks, students selected seats across streams through a unified allotment process.

However, with uncertainty surrounding NEET following allegations of question paper leaks, the state government has decided not to delay admissions for engineering and other courses.

Sudhakar said the decision was taken in the interest of students and reiterated the Congress government's demand to restore the pre-NEET admission system where states conducted their own entrance examinations with weightage for Class 12 marks.

Chief Minister Siddaramaiah alleged that NEET paper leaks had occurred multiple times since 2016 and claimed Karnataka earlier conducted one of the country's most transparent CET systems for medical admissions.

CM demands apology over NEET paper leak controversy

Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Thursday demanded that Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan take responsibility and apologise to students over the alleged NEET question paper leak. Addressing a Youth Congress protest at Freedom Park in Bengaluru, he urged the Centre to allow states to conduct their own CET-style medical entrance examinations. He said Karnataka earlier conducted fair entrance tests before NEET was introduced in 2016. Siddaramaiah alleged repeated leaks have eroded student confidence. He claimed poor and rural students are most affected due to costly coaching systems. He also demanded Pradhan's resignation.

Mekedatu DPR ready, awaiting Centre's nod: D.K. Shivakumar

CHAMARAJANAGAR

Deputy Chief Minister D. K. Shivakumar on Thursday said the Detailed Project Report (DPR) for the ambitious Mekedatu balancing reservoir project is ready and will soon be submitted to the Central government for approval.

Addressing reporters at Kollegal and near the Madhyaranga temple, Shivakumar said the State government has already opened a dedicated office for the project and is identifying alternative land for forest areas likely to be submerged.

"Once the Centre grants approval, the foundation stone for the Mekedatu project will be laid," he said.

The Deputy Chief Minister reiterated that Tamil Nadu has no authority to object to the project and pointed out that the Supreme Court had directed the Central Water Commission to take a final decision.

Speaking on governance, Shivakumar said the Congress government had fulfilled its promises after completing three years in office. He highlighted the implementation of the "Bhoo Guarantee" initiative, under which beneficiaries are being provided property records with photographs of owners and assets.

He also dismissed the long-standing belief that politicians lose power after visiting Chamarajanagar, calling it mere superstition.

"Chamarajanagar is a sacred land blessed with religious and natural wealth. People visit temples here for peace and spiritual strength," he said.

Shivakumar added that the government is undertaking temple restoration works, industrial development projects and welfare measures, including jobs for families affected during the oxygen tragedy in the district.

On the GBA elections, he said the Election Commission would conduct the polls and the State government is prepared to cooperate fully.

When asked about his aspirations to become Chief Minister, Shivakumar replied briefly: "Time will decide."

Over 10,000 Kedarnath pilgrims rescued after massive landslip

DEHRADUN

More than 10,000 pilgrims stranded on the Kedarnath route in Uttarakhand's Rudraprayag district were safely rescued after a massive landslip triggered by heavy rainfall blocked the highway between Sonprayag and Gaurikund, officials said on Thursday.

According to authorities, the landslip occurred near Munkatiya, cutting off movement along the busy pilgrimage route and trapping thousands of devotees travelling to the Kedarnath shrine.

Continuous rainfall, falling rocks, darkness and the difficult Himalayan terrain complicated rescue efforts and created panic among stranded pilgrims.

The District Control Room in Rudraprayag alerted the State Disaster Response Force, following which rescue teams from Sonprayag rushed to the spot with emergency equipment.

Joint teams of the State Disaster Response Force and the National Disaster Response Force launched a large-scale rescue operation and safely evacuated 10,450 pilgrims from the affected stretch.

Officials said rescue personnel guided pilgrims through dangerous sections amid poor visibility and continuous rain before shifting them to designated safe locations.

After the evacuation, authorities deployed JCB machines and earthmovers to clear the debris accumulated on the highway. Normal vehicular movement was restored soon after the road was reopened.

SDRF Commandant Arpan Yaduvanshi said teams stationed along the pilgrimage route were kept on high alert in view of unstable weather conditions."The advance deployment of teams ensured quick response and effective coordination during the rescue operation," he said.

Officials added that stranded vehicles were allowed to move after the blockage was removed and road conditions improved.

WB govt makes 'Vande Mataram' mandatory in madrassas

According to the notification, the national song must be sung before the commencement of classes every day.

Cabinet approves infra, health and education push

BENGALURU

The Karnataka Cabinet, chaired by Chief Minister Siddaramaiah, on Thursday approved a wide range of decisions spanning infrastructure, healthcare, education, land allocation, and administrative reforms, according to a briefing by Law and Parliamentary Affairs Minister H.K. Patil at Vidhana Soudha.

The Cabinet discussed concerns over voter roll deletions, including reported cases affecting lakhs of voters in states such as West Bengal and Tamil Nadu. It considered legal options involving the Election Commission and the Supreme Court, with a final decision expected after further consultations within 3–5 days.

On the development front, approvals included ₹38 crore for 50-bed maternal and child health hospitals in Yadgir and Raichur districts, and ₹100 crore for a 200-bed super-specialty hospital in Karwar. The government also cleared ₹182 crore for canal modernisation under the Tungabhadra project and ₹25 crore for lake development in Mandya district.

In the education sector, ₹802 crore was sanctioned under an ADB-backed project for equipment in degree colleges and polytechnics, along with ₹15 crore for NEET, JEE and CET coaching in government PU colleges. Skill development infrastructure across 32 GTTC centres will be upgraded with ₹90 crore investment.

The Cabinet also approved leasing industrial land for a sugar factory in Mandya, setting up petrol pumps in prisons, and launching digital systems in medical colleges.

PM returns after five-nation diplomatic tour

NEW DELHI

PM Narendra Modi returned to New Delhi on Thursday after completing a five-nation diplomatic tour covering the United Arab Emirates, the Netherlands, Sweden, Norway and Italy between May 15 and 21. During the visit, India signed key agreements in areas such as energy security, defence cooperation, critical minerals, artificial intelligence and green technologies. Several countries also upgraded their ties with India to strategic partnership levels, reflecting growing global engagement. In Italy, Modi held talks with Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni, with both sides agreeing to elevate relations to a "Special Strategic Partnership" covering trade, space, nuclear energy and emerging technologies. He also met President Sergio Mattarella and received the FAO Agricola Medal.In Norway, he attended the India-Nordic Summit and was conferred the Grand Cross of the Royal Norwegian Order of Merit. EBOLA SHADOWS SUMMIT

Ebola outbreak: Ind-Africa Summit postponed

NEW DELHI

India on Thursday postponed the Fourth India-Africa Forum Summit scheduled to be held in New Delhi from May 28 to 31, citing the evolving Ebola public health emergency affecting parts of Africa.

The decision, announced by the Ministry of External Affairs, came after consultations between the Government of India, the Chairperson of the African Union and the African Union Commission.

In an official statement, the Ministry said both sides agreed it would be "advisable" to convene the summit at a later date considering the emerging health situation on the African continent.

The postponement is being viewed as a temporary setback for India-Africa diplomatic engagement, as the summit was expected to revive high-level cooperation after an 11-year gap. The last India-Africa Forum Summit was held in 2015.

Officials indicated that several parallel events organised by the Indian Council of World Affairs and the Indian Council for Cultural Relations have also been put on hold. India expressed solidarity with African nations and reiterated support for an "Africa-led" approach to tackling the Ebola crisis.

The postponement follows growing global concern after the World Health Organization declared the Ebola outbreak in the Democratic Republic of Congo and Uganda a "Public Health Emergency of International Concern".

Earlier this week, African Union Commission spokesperson Nuur Mohamud Sheekh stressed the need for international cooperation, saying pandemics "respect no borders".

The summit was expected to strengthen diplomatic, economic, cultural and strategic ties between India and African nations.

Pulwama attack mastermind killed in PoK: Report

SRINAGAR

Hamza Burhan, an alleged mastermind behind the 2019 Pulwama terror attack that killed 40 CRPF personnel, was reportedly shot dead by unidentified gunmen in Muzaffarabad in Pakistan-occupied Kashmir (PoK), according to media reports.

Burhan, also known as "Doctor," reportedly sustained multiple bullet injuries after armed assailants opened fire inside an office in Muzaffarabad. Though official confirmation is awaited, sources said he succumbed to his injuries shortly after the attack.Hamza Burhan was designated a terrorist by the Indian government in 2022 under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA). Authorities had identified him as an associate of the banned terror outfit Al-Badr.

Originally from Pulwama district in Jammu and Kashmir, Burhan reportedly travelled to Pakistan in 2017 on the pretext of pursuing higher education before allegedly joining terror ranks.

About the Pulwama attack

The 2019 Pulwama attack triggered massive tensions between India and Pakistan. The suicide bombing was carried out by Adil Ahmad Dar, a local Jaish-e-Mohammed recruit. Indian agencies later identified 19 accused connected to the conspiracy, with several killed or arrested during subsequent investigations.

Bengaluru airport conducts emergency preparedness exercise

BENGALURU

Kempegowda International Airport (KIA) on Thursday conducted 'Challenger 2026', a large-scale emergency preparedness exercise involving over 100 stakeholder agencies and nearly 3,000 participants to test crisis response systems and inter-agency coordination.

The bi-annual drill was organised in line with Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA) requirements and International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) guidelines. The exercise simulated a complex emergency scenario and assessed the airport's ability to respond swiftly during high-pressure situations.

According to Bangalore International Airport Limited (BIAL), the exercise evaluated emergency alert activation, firefighting and rescue operations, medical triage management, traffic control and creation of green corridors for rapid transportation of casualties to hospitals. A major highlight of this year's exercise was that it was conducted while regular airport operations continued simultaneously on the second runway, making it one of the most operationally challenging drills held at the airport.

The drill included participation from airlines, airport departments, district and state disaster management authorities, hospitals, military and paramilitary agencies, the Indian Red Cross Society and the State Disaster Response Force (SDRF).

Lawyers Seek High Court Mobile Bench in Shivamogga for Central Karnataka

CH NEWS, BENGALURU
A delegation of lawyers led by Primary and Secondary Education Minister Madhu Bangarappa met Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and urged the state government to establish a mobile bench of the Karnataka High Court in Shivamogga. The delegation met the Chief Minister at his home office "Krishna" and submitted a request highlighting the difficulties faced by people from Shivamogga, Davangere, Chikkamagaluru and Chitradurga districts in accessing justice. According to the lawyers, lakhs of people from the Central Karnataka region are forced to travel nearly 250 to 300 kilometres to Bengaluru for High Court-related matters, causing financial burden, inconvenience and delays in legal proceedings. They argued that Shivamogga is centrally located and meets all the required conditions laid down by the Justice Jaswant Singh Committee for establishing High Court benches.

HC Directs State to Decide on Class 1 Age Relaxation within a Week

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka High Court has directed the School Education Department to reconsider requests seeking relaxation in the minimum age limit for admission to Class 1 for the 2026-27 academic year and issue an appropriate decision within a week.

The vacation bench of Justice S R Krishnakumar passed the order while hearing petitions filed by six students, including Master Krishna Ganesh from Bengaluru, represented by their parents. The court observed that students and parents were facing difficulties due to the revised age eligibility rules and instructed the department to examine all aspects of the issue before taking a final decision.

During the hearing, counsel for the petitioners argued that the School Education Department had issued an order on March 28 fixing the minimum age criteria for Class 1 admissions. Under the revised norms, children who have not completed six years by the prescribed date would not be eligible for admission.

The petitioners contended that many children had already completed their pre-primary education during the 2025-26 academic year and were academically and socially prepared to move to Class 1. However, due to the revised rule, they may now be forced to repeat UKG, affecting nearly five lakh students across the state.

Parents argued that schools had followed a different admission system for several years, and families had enrolled children in pre-primary education based on the expectation that they would progress to first grade in 2026-27.

The petitioners sought relaxation similar to the previous academic year, allowing admission for children aged five years and five months.

Responding to the submissions, the government counsel informed the court that if granted reasonable time, the department would consider the representations seeking age relaxation and issue necessary orders.

The High Court then directed the authorities to take an appropriate decision within one week.

Textbooks to Reach Schools Before Academic Year Begins, Says KTBS

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

In a major relief for students and parents, the Karnataka government is set to ensure timely delivery of school textbooks before the beginning of the 2026-27 academic year, with over 85 percent of printing work already completed.

Officials of the Karnataka Textbook Society said the process of supplying books to schools has already begun, raising hopes that students will receive textbooks before classes commence.

Though the tender process witnessed a slight delay, authorities continued printing work without interruption. Textbooks are being printed through 22 selected printers under different packages.

According to officials, more than 75 percent of the printed textbooks have already been transported to taluk-level warehouses, and distribution to schools officially began on May 18.

The remaining 10 to 15 percent of printing work is expected to be completed within a week. The state government has sanctioned Rs 264.62 crore for the textbook programme. More than 61 lakh students studying under the state curriculum will benefit from the initiative.

Apart from government schools, free textbooks will also be distributed to students in government PU colleges and children enrolled in pre-primary classes such as LKG and UKG in government institutions from the current academic year.

Officials said the initiative is aimed at strengthening public education and improving enrolment in government schools.

The government has also collected 25 percent advance payment from unaided private schools that requested textbooks under the state curriculum. Printing and supply to these schools will be carried out based on demand, while the remaining 75 percent payment must be made before delivery.

Education department officials have directed printers to strictly adhere to timelines to avoid disruption in classroom activities at the start of the academic year.

Box Story: Strict Action for Delay

Managing Director of the Karnataka Textbook Society, M P Madegowda, said all printers have been instructed to complete printing and supply work on priority. "As per the work order, textbooks are being supplied to taluk warehouses and schools from May 18. Printing and distribution will be almost completed before schools reopen. Any delay will invite fines and legal action against printers as per rules," he warned.

Railway Officials Pulled Up Over Drainage Delays in Banaswadi

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Energy Minister K. J. George on Thursday directed Railway Department officials in the Banaswadi division to cooperate with the Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board (BWSSB) and Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) officials in resolving drainage issues near Banaswadi Railway Station.

The Minister inspected ongoing development works in several residential localities of his Sarvagnanagar constituency before visiting the K-RIDE project site near Banaswadi Railway Station, where drainage and infrastructure works are underway. During the inspection, civic officials complained that railway authorities were not responding to repeated requests, resulting in delays in execution of key public works.

Expressing displeasure over the lack of coordination, George sharply reprimanded railway officials and stressed the need for cooperation among departments.

"You officials receive salaries wherever you are posted. Work with humanity and respond to people's concerns. Coordinate and work together with GBA officials," the Minister said while interacting with railway authorities at the site.

George further stated that Union Minister of State for Railways V. Somanna is expected to visit the Sarvagnanagar constituency soon and that officials would brief him about the issue. He urged senior railway officers to intervene immediately and resolve the hurdles affecting civic works. The Minister said the government remained committed to safeguarding the livelihood and dignity of citizens and ensuring timely completion of public infrastructure projects.

Earlier in the day, George inaugurated multiple developmental works, including the groundbreaking ceremony for an auditorium dedicated to sports and cultural activities in Banaswadi. He also launched sports infrastructure development works around Kacharakanahalli Lake. The Minister later inspected the ongoing white-topping work on Hennur 80 Feet Road and instructed engineers to speed up the project. He also reviewed stormwater drain works in Nagawara Nanda Gokula Layout, Jai Bharat Nagar and Maruthi Sevanagar.

George additionally visited the residence of late Congress leader and former corporator K.B. Mohan to offer condolences to the bereaved family.

BMTC Plans Ads on Bus Tickets, QR Codes to Boost Non-Fare Revenue

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

In a fresh attempt to boost non-fare revenue, the Bengaluru Metropolitan Transport Corporation has decided to print advertisements on the back of bus tickets and introduce QR code-based promotions behind bus seats.

The move comes as BMTC looks to strengthen revenue sources amid financial pressure caused by the implementation of the government's free travel 'Shakti' scheme for women.

After fully utilising the advertising space available on buses, the corporation has now turned its attention to Electronic Ticketing Machine (ETM) tickets distributed daily to lakhs of passengers across Bengaluru.

BMTC has invited global tenders for commercialising the rear side of thermal tickets issued through ETMs. According to officials, the initiative is expected to provide advertisers access to a massive audience of over 45 lakh commuters travelling in BMTC buses every day. A senior BMTC official said the corporation is also examining a proposal to install QR codes behind passenger seats inside buses.

"Passengers can scan the QR code and directly access the advertiser's portal. More such innovative measures are being explored to improve non-fare revenue," the official said.

The corporation currently uses around 72 lakh ETM thermal rolls every year, averaging nearly six lakh rolls per month. Each roll can print approximately 3,750 tickets, offering advertisers extensive visibility throughout the city. BMTC presently operates 6,959 buses through 52 depots and manages over 6,275 schedules daily, making it one of the country's largest urban public transport systems.

Officials said advertisement artwork will be supplied by the agency selected through the tender process and printed through BMTC's authorised ETM roll suppliers.

The Scheme That Gave Women The Freedom to Travel

The Shakthi Guarantee

A Lifeline for Crores of Women

Guarantee Varthe

Bengaluru: The 'Shakthi' scheme was the first among the five Guarantee schemes announced by the Government led by Chief Minister Siddaramaiah after assuming office in the state in 2023. Officially launched on June 11, 2023, the scheme provides free travel in government buses for women and girl students across the state. Over the past three years, this ambitious initiative has brought about a transformative change by ensuring freedom of travel to crores of women across Karnataka.

Women from lower and lower-middle-income backgrounds, including garment workers, civic workers, and daily wage earners, are now saving approximately ₹1,500 to ₹2,000 every month. These savings are being utilised for children's education, household expenses, medicines, and small savings. The scheme has enabled rural girl students to travel to towns and cities for higher education without financial burden. Following the implementation of the scheme, there has also been a significant rise in the number of women devotees visiting major temples and tourist destinations, thereby boosting religious tourism as well.

Over 726 Cr Journeys

According to government data, women passengers have availed over 726 crore free journeys under the 'Shakthi' scheme since its launch. So far, the government has issued tickets worth over ₹18,943 crore and continues to release subsidies to transport corporations on time. To manage the increasing passenger demand, thousands of new buses have been added to transport fleets. To further streamline the scheme and prevent misuse, the government is also moving towards introducing the 'Shakthi Smart Card' for women shortly.

A Model for Other States

Karnataka's 'Shakthi' scheme is not limited to free bus travel alone; by increasing women's mobility, it has instilled renewed confidence among them. The success of Karnataka's model has inspired several other states to implement similar initiatives. Telangana has introduced 'Mahalakshmi', Andhra Pradesh has launched 'Sthree Shakthi', and Kerala too has implemented a similar scheme. West Bengal has also announced a scheme and has moved towards implementation.

Chairing the preparatory meeting held today at the Deputy Commissioner's Office auditorium, she said Nalvadi Krishnaraja Wadiyar was an extraordinary leader whose contributions to industry, education, irrigation, and agriculture transformed the region more than a century ago. A ROYAL TRIBUTE AT LAST

Mysuru celebrates a historic recognition of its legendary visionary king

SHYAM SUNDAR VATTAM
MYSURU

It is truly a dream come true for every Mysurean as the district administration has finally decided to celebrate the birth anniversary of Sri Nalvadi Krishnaraja Wadiyar as a State-Level Festival every year.

For decades, the Jayanti of the architect of modern Mysore was observed only as a district-level event despite his unmatched contributions to the development of the erstwhile Mysore State. Citizens, historians, cultural organizations, and admirers of the legendary ruler had long demanded that the celebrations be elevated to the state level. After years of anticipation, that cherished dream has finally become a reality.

The Government of Karnataka celebrates the birth anniversaries of several eminent personalities in recognition of their invaluable contributions to society. However, many people felt that the grand Jayanti celebrations of Nalvadi Krishnaraja Wadiyar — fondly honoured with the title

"Rajarshi" by none other than Mahatma Gandhi for his people-centric welfare governance — deserved similar statewide recognition much earlier.

Every stone in Mysuru silently narrates the glorious legacy of Nalvadi. From education and irrigation to industries, public health, power generation, art, culture, and administration, his visionary leadership transformed the princely State of Mysore into one of the most progressive regions in the country during the early 20th century. Mysore was widely regarded as a model state because of its modern outlook, efficient governance, and commitment to public welfare.

Nalvadi Krishnaraja Wadiyar was not merely a king; he was a far-sighted statesman who introduced numerous welfare schemes and developmental initiatives for the benefit of common citizens. Under his reign, Mysore witnessed remarkable growth in infrastructure, higher education, music, culture, and industrialization, placing the state prominently on the global map.

Yet, all these years, the Jayanti celebrations largely remained confined to floral tributes, statue garlanding ceremonies, and speeches at the city level. The emotional connection that Mysureans share with their beloved ruler always called for something much larger and more befitting of his stature.

Now, with the State Government officially deciding to organize the Jayanti on a grand state level, a long-standing aspiration of the people has finally been fulfilled. The decision has brought immense joy and pride to citizens who consider Nalvadi Krishnaraja Wadiyar not just a ruler, but the true architect of modern Mysuru.

The long wait has ended on a truly historic and happy note.

Will Nalvadi's statue gets the dignity and protection it deserves?

SHYAM SUNDAR VATTAM
MYSURU

Standing tall at the heart of Mysuru, the statue of the legendary ruler Sri Nalvadi Krishnaraja Wadiyar is not merely a monument of the pristine white granite stone — it is a symbol of the city's glorious heritage, progressive vision, and royal legacy. Ironically, the very statue that represents the architect of modern Mysore today stands neglected, poorly maintained, and crying for urgent attention.

Pic by Hampa Nagaraju

Located at the bustling K.R. Circle, the statue witnesses thousands of commuters every day. Yet, the condition of the surroundings often reflects civic apathy rather than respect for one of Karnataka's greatest rulers. Dust-covered structures, faded paint, damaged lighting fixtures, lack of security and cleaning have become a common sight around the monument. During rains, stagnant water and poor upkeep only add to the embarrassment for a city internationally known for its culture and heritage.

Citizens say the Mysuru City Corporation has failed to maintain the statue and its premises with the dignity it truly deserves. While crores are spent on beautification drives and tourism promotion, many feel that preserving symbols of Mysuru's identity should have been a priority.

"It is painful to see Nalvadi's statue in such poor condition. He transformed Mysore into a model state, but today even his memorial is not maintained properly," said Raghavendra Prasad, a retired government employee from Saraswathipuram.

Another resident, Shilpa Rao, expressed disappointment over the lack of civic sensitivity. "Tourists from across the world visit Mysuru and pass through K.R. Circle. What impression are we giving them when the statue of such a great ruler is neglected?" she questioned.

Cultural activist Mahadev Kumar said the issue goes beyond maintenance. "Nalvadi Krishnaraja Wadiyar is part of Mysuru's soul. The authorities should install proper lighting, security surveillance, landscaping, and regular maintenance teams around the statue," he suggested.

The recent decision to celebrate Nalvadi Jayanti as a state-level event has once again brought public attention to the condition of the statue. Citizens now hope that the government and civic authorities will finally wake up to their responsibility and ensure lasting protection and maintenance of the memorial.

For Mysureans, respecting Nalvadi is not just about speeches and celebrations once a year. It is about preserving his memory every single day with dignity, pride, and responsibility.

The question now remains — will the statue finally receive the honour and protection it truly deserves?

HOLD LOCAL BODY POLLS, MLC RAVI CHALLENGES CM SIDDARAMAIAH

MYSURU

Former minister and MLC C.T. Ravi challenged Chief Minister Siddaramaiah to conduct local body elections if he truly had confidence in the people.

Addressing a news conference here on Wednesday, he questioned why the government had approached the court seeking postponement of the Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) elections despite recently holding a "Sadhana Samavesha" and claiming readiness to accept political challenges. "If you genuinely trust the people, conduct elections to Zilla Panchayats, Taluk Panchayats, City Corporations and Town Municipalities," he said, adding that the government's reluctance to hold elections clearly reflected fear of defeat.

Responding to criticism over Prime Minister Narendra Modi's foreign visits amid rising prices of essential commodities, Ravi said India did not seek war, but global developments had affected the country economically. Just as doctors prescribe dietary restrictions for health, Modi had advised people to avoid unnecessary expenditure and excessive gold purchases in the larger economic interest of the nation, he said. This would help prevent foreign exchange shortages and ensure the country did not face an economic crisis similar to 1990-91, he added.

Ravi further said Prime Minister Modi was not travelling abroad for leisure, but to secure important agreements in the national interest. He criticised Congress leaders, alleging that they campaign for a few days and disappear for weeks afterwards.

On criticism that Modi does not answer questions from foreign journalists, Ravi said journalists have the right to ask questions, but there is no rule that every question must be answered. He defended Modi as one of the best communicators in the country's history and said no Prime Minister since Independence had emotionally connected with the public to such an extent. In a democracy, political strength is proven in elections and not in press conferences, he said, adding that the people of the country had repeatedly demonstrated their faith in Modi's leadership through electoral victories for the BJP.

Cong snatching SC/ST reservation benefits: B. Sriramulu

MYSURU

Former minister B. Sriramulu accused the State Congress government of doing injustice to Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes by taking away the enhanced reservation benefits introduced by the previous BJP government.

Addressing a press conference here on Wednesday, he said that after a continuous 30-year struggle and based on the report of the Justice Nagamohan Das Commission, the previous BJP government led by Basavaraj Bommai had taken a firm decision to increase reservation for Scheduled Castes from 15 per cent to 17 per cent and for Scheduled Tribes from 3 per cent to 7 per cent. At the time, leaders of all political parties, including Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and H.D. Kumaraswamy, had supported the decision unanimously. However, the Congress government has now moved to snatch away these reservation benefits.

The former minister said that when a Congress leader from Raichur challenged the reservation hike in court, the State government's lawyers failed to present proper arguments, resulting in a temporary stay order from the High Court. Following this, the government allegedly issued a confusing order overnight reducing ST reservation back to 3 per cent. Due to this, the future of hundreds of poor students who had secured admissions to medical and engineering courses has been pushed into uncertainty. He further alleged that four students had already died by suicide over the issue and held the government directly responsible for the deaths.

Sriramulu stated that during the Belagavi Assembly session, a Bill classifying internal reservation under the 6-6-5 model was passed and a gazette notification was issued in December 2025. After obtaining the Governor's approval for the 17 per cent classification, the government convened a Cabinet meeting the very same evening and claimed that reservation would be maintained within the Supreme Court's 50 per cent limit. By giving one version before the Raj Bhavan and another before the Cabinet, the government has created confusion in the entire process, he charged.

Criticising Congress leaders for misleading people by claiming reservation should be included in the Ninth Schedule of the Constitution on the lines of Tamil Nadu, Sriramulu challenged Chief Minister Siddaramaiah, whom he described as a self-proclaimed champion of backward classes, to immediately get the temporary stay order vacated if he truly cared for the community.

He also said that a high-level BJP delegation comprising former ministers, MPs and MLAs would meet the Chief Minister to discuss the issue. If the government fails to resolve the matter, the BJP would continue its fight and ensure that justice is delivered to SC and ST communities when the party returns to power in the 2028 Assembly elections, he asserted.

According to the complaint, Dhananjay alleged that when he demanded the return of money paid in connection with a site transaction, Gangaraju drove the car from near the Sub-Registrar's office to Kuvempunagar Police Station with him clinging to the bonnet.

Dhananjay lodged an FIR at the station accusing Gangaraju of attempting to murder him for asking back the money he had paid. Following the complaint, Kuvempunagar police arrested Gangaraju and remanded him to judicial custody.

What the FIR says

In the FIR, Dhananjay stated that in June 2024, he had paid Rs 20 lakh in cash to Gangaraju for the purchase of a site belonging to another person. Gangaraju had allegedly promised to provide the title deed for the property. However, despite repeated attempts to contact him regarding the matter, the title deed was never provided, nor was the money returned.

On May 20, 2026, Dhananjay reportedly spotted Gangaraju near the Sub-Registrar's office in Ramakrishnanagar, Mysuru. He claimed that when he tried to speak to Gangaraju, the latter ignored him and got into his car. Dhananjay further alleged that when he stood in front of the vehicle, Gangaraju started the car and deliberately drove towards him with the intention of killing him.

Fearing for his safety, Dhananjay said he fell onto the bonnet of the car and held onto the wiper while Gangaraju allegedly continued driving at speed for nearly one kilometre. The car was eventually stopped in front of Kuvempunagar Police Station.

Dhananjay alleged in the complaint that Gangaraju attempted to kill him to avoid repaying the Rs 20 lakh owed to him.

Manjunath alleged that the Central Government and Election Com mission were systematically removing names of voters from electoral rolls in Mysuru district, including nearly 23,000 voters in Hunsur taluk. Speaking at a meeting of Congress booth-level agents at the party office in Hunsur, he ur ged workers to carefully verify voter documents and identify missing names immediately.

KPCC spokesperson M. Lax man claimed that Scheduled Castes, Muslims, and Christia ns were being targeted during the voter list revision process. He said Congress workers must remain alert and ensure eligible voters are not removed from the rolls. Laxman also questioned the district administration over additional document requirements during the verification process and demanded that updated voter lists be released without delay. Duri ng the meeting, Manjunath said party workers should actively help residents complete documentation and protect their voting rights. He also criticised the Central Government over rising prices of essential commodities and declining tobacco prices, alleging that local BJP leaders failed to support farmers despite making public promises.

Kerala Assembly Celebrates New MLAs' Oath

The Assembly witnessed an unusual and vibrant atmosphere on Thursday as 139 newly -lected lawmakers of the 16th Assembly took oath amid scenes rarely seen in the state's political history

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

The oath-taking ceremony created what many described as a true festival of democracy, with the Assembly premises shedding its usual image of exclusivity and political formality.

Unlike routine Assembly sessions that involve heavy security arrangements and tightly controlled entry procedures, Thursday's event was marked by openness and accessibility.

Visitors entered the Assembly complex without facing long security checks, aggressive frisking, or repeated demands for entry passes. The relaxed atmosphere gave the venue the feel of a public celebration rather than a strictly constitutional event. The only area that remained restricted was the direct entrance leading to the Assembly floor where the lawmakers formally took oath.

Across the corridors, there was an air of excitement and political enthusiasm. Party workers, supporters, journalists, and curious citizens gathered in large numbers, engaging in lively discussions, taking selfies, greeting political leaders, and observing the changing political landscape of the state. The usually quiet and disciplined Assembly corridors were instead filled with noise, movement, and celebration.

Even the Assembly coffee shop, which is traditionally reserved for legislators and accredited journalists, was opened to everyone attending the event. The canteen quickly became one of the busiest areas in the complex as crowds gathered for tea, snacks, and political conversations.

It's bumper business today, a smiling canteen employee said while trying to manage the unusually large crowd. Visitors spent hours discussing election results, cabinet possibilities, and the future direction of Kerala politics.

The changing political equations inside the Assembly were also reflected in the mood of political leaders present at the venue. State BJP General Secretary S. Suresh appeared optimistic and cheerful as his party secured representation in the Assembly with three legislators.

Now we will be seen here more often, Suresh remarked confidently while interacting with journalists and supporters. He added that the BJP intended to play a stronger role in Assembly debates and political discussions in the coming years.

Another notable presence at the Assembly complex was former minister K. P. Mohanan, who was seen carrying a press pass for the newspaper he owns. Mohanan, who had served in the outgoing Assembly, said he had stepped away from electoral politics and returned to journalism.

I have now returned to my profession, he said with a smile, explaining that he had decided not to contest the election and had instead passed the opportunity to his nephew, who successfully won the seat.

As the swearing-in ceremony continued throughout the day, the Kerala Assembly presented a rare picture of politics without barriers, where elected representatives and ordinary citizens shared the same space in an atmosphere of openness and democratic celebration.

Bengal govt launches crackdown on illegal migrants

NEW DELHI

The decision by the government led by Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee has triggered fresh discussions among security planners and intelligence officials regarding the growing challenges posed by illegal immigration in several parts of the country.

Senior officials said the state's Director General of Police and Chief Secretary have been instructed to ensure strict implementation of the new protocol.

According to officials, illegal immigration has remained one of the most sensitive issues affecting West Bengal for decades. Security agencies claim that the problem began intensifying during the 1970s and later expanded beyond West Bengal into northeastern states, especially Assam.

Officials now warn that the issue has spread to several other regions of India, including Bihar and parts of South India.

Security officials allege that illegal immigration networks gradually evolved into organised systems linked to criminal activities such as fake currency circulation, narcotics trafficking, and cattle smuggling. In certain border districts of West Bengal and Assam, authorities claim that criminal syndicates associated with illegal migration have become deeply entrenched over the years.

Illegal immigration has remained one of the most sensitive issues affecting West Bengal for decades'

An Intelligence Bureau official stated that illegal immigrants were often provided with forged identity documents, including voter identification cards and Aadhaar cards, through organised networks operated by touts and middlemen. Officials allege that these documents enabled migrants to settle in different parts of the country and sometimes become part of political vote-bank strategies.

According to security officials, tackling the issue requires both internal enforcement and stronger border infrastructure.

The newly announced detect, detain and deport framework is being viewed as the first phase of a broader strategy to identify undocumented migrants and prevent further illegal crossings into India.

A major focus has also been placed on strengthening fencing along the India-Bangladesh border. India and Bangladesh share a border stretching approximately 2,200 kilometres, of which around 1,600 kilometres has already been fenced, according to officials.

Authorities have now announced the immediate transfer of 75 acres of land covering nearly 27 kilometres of border areas to accelerate construction work.

Tejashwi blasts Bihar govt over police action on TRE-4 protesters

PATNA

Bihar Leader of the Opposition Tejashwi Yadav on Thursday launched a strong attack on the NDA government led by Chief Minister Samrat Choudhary over police action against candidates protesting for the release of vacancies under the TRE-4 teacher recruitment process.

In a post shared on social media, Tejashwi Yadav questioned the government's handling of demonstrations by teacher recruitment aspirants, saying students and unemployed youth were only demanding that the government fulfil its promises regarding employment and conduct the TRE-4 examination.

The former Deputy Chief Minister said it was unfair to treat job seekers like criminals for raising concerns over delayed recruitment and repeated paper leak incidents in examinations. He criticised the use of police force against protesting candidates and alleged that lathi-charges on students had become a repeated pattern under the current administration.

How can demanding TRE-4 recruitment become a crime? How can protesting against paper leaks be considered an offense? Yadav asked while attacking the government's approach toward the issue.

He further stated that if the state government truly wanted to use police machinery effectively, it should focus on controlling crime and corruption rather than targeting unemployed youth demanding jobs. According to him, the government appeared more interested in suppressing protests than addressing the concerns of candidates waiting for recruitment opportunities.

Tejashwi Yadav also alleged that the NDA government had no serious intention of moving forward with the TRE-4 recruitment process. He claimed that despite repeated demands from students and aspirants, the government had failed to issue an official notification for the recruitment drive.

Referring to the earlier Mahagathbandhan government in Bihar, Yadav said that during its 17-month tenure, over 200,000 teachers were recruited successfully through the TRE-1 and TRE-2 processes without any incidents of question paper leaks. He added that the previous government had also initiated recruitment for another 130,000 teaching posts before political developments changed the state government.

The RJD leader pointed out that Bihar had witnessed several political changes in recent months, including reshuffles involving the chief minister, deputy chief ministers, and cabinet ministers, yet no progress had been made regarding TRE-4 recruitment.

Yadav also criticised ministers in the current government, accusing them of focusing more on publicity campaigns and creating social media content rather than solving the problems faced by unemployed youth across the state.

The airline said the aircraft landed safely and all passengers and crew members disembarked normally. Following the incident, the aircraft has been grounded for a detailed inspection.

Air India added that the matter will be investigated in line with established procedures. Due to the grounding of the aircraft, the return flight AI2652 from Bengaluru to Delhi was cancelled. Rajasthan CM visits tribal village, reviews development needs

JAIPUR

Rajasthan Chief Minister Bhajanlal Sharma on Thursday visited the remote tribal village of Chuda in Banswara district as part of the state government's Gram Vikas Chaupal initiative.

After conducting a night Chaupal in the village, the Chief Minister returned again early Thursday morning and walked through village lanes to interact personally with local residents. The visit was aimed at understanding public concerns firsthand and evaluating the implementation of development schemes at the grassroots level.

Speaking to villagers during the interaction, Bhajanlal Sharma said the state government was working in line with the vision of Pandit Deendayal Upadhyay's concept of Antyodaya, which focuses on ensuring that the benefits of governance and welfare schemes reach the poorest and most marginalised sections of society.

The government's first priority is development reaching the last mile, Sharma said while addressing residents. He added that the Gram Vikas Chaupal programme had become an effective platform for resolving local issues through direct dialogue between citizens and the administration.

The Chief Minister later held a Chaupal meeting under a peepal tree where villagers highlighted concerns related to drinking water, irrigation facilities, infrastructure development, and other civic needs. Responding immediately to the demands, Sharma instructed the district administration to construct an anicut on the Hiran River to improve irrigation and strengthen water availability for both agriculture and drinking purposes in the region.

During the visit, the Chief Minister also stopped at a Maa Bari Centre, where he interacted warmly with children and distributed chocolates among them. He encouraged students to continue their education and urged villagers to ensure that young people stay away from drug addiction and other harmful activities.

The visit also witnessed administrative action on allegations of financial irregularities. Employees reportedly complained to the Chief Minister regarding alleged financial misconduct involving Kushalgarh Block Chief Medical Officer Dr Girish Bhabhor. Taking serious note of the matter, Sharma directed officials to initiate immediate action. Following his instructions, the Medical Department placed Dr Bhabhor on Awaiting Posting Order status pending further proceedings.

Addressing farmers during the programme, the Chief Minister stressed the importance of water conservation and sustainable agricultural practices.

Vande Mataram row returns in TN as DMK targets Vijay govt

CHENNAI

A fresh political controversy that erupted in Tamil Nadu on Thursday after the recitation of songs during the swearing-in ceremony of 23 newly inducted ministers in Chief Minister C. Joseph Vijay's Cabinet reignited the debate over the place of Vande Mataram and the Tamil invocation song (Tamil Thai Vazhthu) at official state events.

The issue resurfaced after Vande Mataram was played before the Tamil invocation during the oath-taking ceremony, drawing criticism from the opposition DMK, which accused the government of undermining Tamil traditions and adopting what it described as BJP-style politics in the state.

In a strongly worded post on social media platform X, the DMK IT wing questioned the Vijay government for departing from Tamil Nadu's long-standing convention of beginning official functions with Tamil Thai Vazhthu and concluding them with the national anthem.

The party recalled earlier assurances that the previous protocol would be restored and accused the government of failing to uphold that commitment.

Do not attempt to practise BJP politics in Tamil Nadu, the post said, alleging that Tamil traditions were being sidelined.

DMK spokesperson T.K.S. Elangovan alleged that the state government lacked control over the situation and suggested that the administration was functioning under pressure from Governor Rajendra Vishwanath Arlekar.

They have no control. They are under pressure from the Governor, who is a BJP man. They are disrespecting Tamil and established practices in Tamil Nadu, Elangovan said.

Senior DMK leader R.S. Bharathi also criticised the move, claiming the government was disregarding Tamil identity and traditions.

Referring to the state's long-standing resistance to Hindi imposition and the anti-Hindi agitations that shaped Tamil Nadu politics, Bharathi said the state had consistently protected its linguistic identity for decades.

The controversy is similar to the one that surfaced during Vijay's own swearing-in ceremony on May 10, when Tamil Thai Vazhthu was played after Vande Mataram and the national anthem.

PEOPLE-FRIENDLY STEP

Telangana enhances minimum wages for workers

HYDERABAD

The Telangana government has decided to enhance minimum wages for workers across the state.

Chief Minister A. Revanth Reddy said on Thursday that the decision has been taken on the recommendation of a Cabinet Sub-Committee headed by Deputy Chief Minister Mallu Bhatti Vikramarka.

For the unskilled category of workers, the government has increased the minimum wages from Rs 12,750 to Rs 16,000. For the semi-skilled category, the minimum wages have been revised from Rs 13,152 to Rs 17,000.

The Chief Minister told the media that for the skilled workers, the minimum wages have been increased from Rs 13,772 to Rs 18,500, while for the highly skilled category, the government has decided to raise the wages from Rs 14,607 to Rs 20,000.

This decision by the state government will come into effect starting June 1 and benefit 1.11 crore workers, he said while congratulating them.

He alleged that due to the negligence of the previous government, the workers suffered losses.

CM Revanth Reddy said the government has created three geographical zones. We have determined the minimum wage structure by designating Municipal Corporations as Zone 1, Municipalities as Zone 2, and Rural Areas as Zone 3, he said.

The Chief Minister claimed that for the first time since the formation of the state, a decision has been taken specifically for the welfare of workers. The previous government neglected its responsibilities in this regard, he said. He stated that the Congress government acted responsibly and took a decision that serves the best interests of the workers.

Revanth Reddy advised the youth to come out of the mindset that focuses solely on careers in Information Technology or migrating to the United States.

Education that fails to yield jobs or provide employment opportunities is futile. Possessing technical skills opens up a multitude of opportunities in various other countries, such as Germany, Japan, and Singapore, he said.

That is precisely why the state government has established Skills University to encourage and empower the youth. The youth should direct their focus and efforts in this direction, he added.

Tripura CM asks cops to focus on cybercrime, crimes against women

Saha stressed that policing methods must evolve with changing times and increasing technological threats

AGARTHALA

Tripura Chief Minister Manik Saha on Thursday urged the state police force to strengthen efforts against cybercrime and crimes targeting women and children while emphasising the importance of technology-driven and people-friendly policing.

Speaking at the ceremony held at the KTD Singh Police Training Academy in Narsingarh on the outskirts of Agartala, the Chief Minister said police personnel must perform their duties with honesty, dedication, sincerity, and compassion toward the public.

The passing-out parade marked the completion of training for the 91st and 92nd batches of recruit constables, comprising 476 personnel, including 318 women constables. Manik Saha, who also holds the Home portfolio in the state government, said the recruits underwent nearly 11 months of rigorous training in various aspects of policing and public safety.

According to the Chief Minister, the recruits received specialised instruction in traffic management, crowd control, disaster response, handling mob violence, controlling illegal activities, and maintaining law and order in difficult situations. He noted that the training programme was designed to prepare police personnel for both traditional policing responsibilities and modern security challenges.

Saha stressed that policing methods must evolve with changing times and increasing technological threats. He observed that modern law enforcement agencies cannot function effectively without advanced technology and digital capabilities. Referring specifically to cybercrime, the Chief Minister said police officers must continuously adapt to new forms of criminal activity emerging in the digital space.

He further stated that protecting women and children would remain one of the highest priorities for both the government and the police administration. According to him, law enforcement agencies must respond sensitively and effectively to crimes involving vulnerable groups while maintaining public confidence in the justice system.

The Chief Minister also reiterated the state government's commitment to modernising the Tripura Police force. He assured officials and recruits that the government would continue to provide all necessary support for strengthening police infrastructure, improving training standards, and enhancing operational capabilities.

During the event, Saha announced that the recruitment process for 218 Sub-Inspectors in the Tripura Police would begin shortly. In addition, he said the government had already approved the recruitment of 916 more police constables and that the process for these appointments would commence soon.

Referring to previous recruitment efforts, the Chief Minister recalled that appointment letters for 975 constable posts had been distributed to youths on May 13 last year. Of those recruits, 476 have now successfully completed their training at the academy.

The ceremony concluded with the newly trained constables taking part in the formal passing-out parade, marking the beginning of their service in the Tripura Police force.

Reddy demands special Parliament session on women's reservation

HYDERABAD

Telangana Chief Minister A. Revanth Reddy on Thursday urged the Central government to convene an immediate special session of Parliament to implement 33% reservation for women in legislative bodies.

Paying tribute to Rajiv Gandhi, Revanth Reddy described the former Prime Minister as a visionary leader who played a major role in modernising India and empowering women politically. He said Rajiv Gandhi had laid the foundation for women's participation in governance by introducing reservation for women in local bodies, which transformed grassroots politics across the country.

The Chief Minister criticised the Union government for linking the implementation of women's reservation in Parliament and state legislatures to the delimitation of constituencies. According to him, this linkage was creating unnecessary hurdles in implementing the long-pending demand for greater representation of women in legislative institutions.

Revanth Reddy said the issue of women's reservation should not be politicised and urged the Centre to move forward with immediate implementation. He maintained that women's political empowerment was essential for strengthening democracy and ensuring balanced representation in decision-making bodies.

"The INDIA bloc is ready to support the women's reservation bill in Parliament," the Chief Minister said, while demanding that the Centre convene a special session without delay to address the matter.

Recalling Rajiv Gandhi's contributions to the nation, Revanth Reddy said the former Prime Minister introduced information technology to India and played a crucial role in placing the country on the global technological map. He credited Rajiv Gandhi with initiating reforms and liberalised policies that helped accelerate India's development and modernisation.

"It was Rajiv Gandhi who ushered in the era of technology in the country and steered India onto the path of development," he said during the commemorative event.

The Telangana Chief Minister also stated that the Congress government in the state was working according to the ideals and vision of Rajiv Gandhi, particularly in areas related to women's welfare and empowerment. He claimed that the "People's Government" in Telangana was committed to inclusive development and social justice.

'Centre committed to strengthening childhood cancer care, survival'

NEW DELHI

Speaking at the workshop, L. Swasticharan, Deputy Director General of the Directorate General of Health Services under the Union Health Ministry, said the government aims to "break the barrier" in childhood cancer treatment so that all affected children receive timely diagnosis, proper medical care, and adequate financial support.

Swasticharan described childhood cancer as a major priority area within healthcare programmes and referred to it as a "low hanging fruit" in terms of improving patient survival through focused government intervention. According to him, the existing Non-Communicable Diseases programme already includes a cancer component, which can be further strengthened to address childhood cancers more effectively.

"The priority is that a childhood cancer patient should be detected early and ensuring financial support and medical care," he said while addressing healthcare professionals, policymakers, and representatives from international organisations.

He also highlighted the importance of learning from successful healthcare models developed in states such as Kerala and Tamil Nadu. According to Swasticharan, these states have effectively involved self-help groups and developed financial support mechanisms linked to the Pradhan Mantri Jan Arogya Yojana to improve access to healthcare services.

The senior official further stressed that healthcare support for cancer patients should continue even after successful treatment. He said survivorship care, rehabilitation, and community support systems must become an integral part of the healthcare response to childhood cancer.

"All our heroic acts of curing a patient should continue and not end with survival," he said, emphasising the need for long-term support systems involving communities and multiple stakeholders.

Swasticharan also underlined the importance of early detection and maintaining accurate data related to childhood cancer cases. He said discussions are ongoing with the Indian Council of Medical Research regarding the creation of a national registry and the possibility of declaring childhood cancer a notifiable disease.

"The aim is not to miss any patient," he said while explaining the need for systematic data collection and reporting.

During the workshop, Bishnu Giri, Technical Officer for Cancer Control at the World Health Organization, said investment in childhood cancer treatment should be viewed as socially and economically beneficial rather than expensive.

According to him, studies show that every dollar spent on childhood cancer care can generate multiple times the value in long-term economic and social gains, particularly in developing countries. He also called for sustainable financing models and flexible funding systems to strengthen cancer care infrastructure.

Railways expands use of AI, drones to strengthen security

NEW DELHI

Union Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw on Thursday said that Indian Railways is intensifying the use of advanced technologies such as artificial intelligence, drones, and CCTV surveillance systems.

The meeting was attended by senior Railway Ministry officials along with field officers from different parts of the country. Discussions focused on enhancing security mechanisms across the railway system and improving coordination between various agencies responsible for maintaining safety on railway premises.

According to the minister, Indian Railways is implementing technology-driven security measures in mission mode, while simultaneously strengthening intelligence gathering at the grassroots level through the Railway Protection Force. He said the use of modern surveillance and monitoring systems would help authorities detect suspicious activities more efficiently and respond more quickly to security threats.

One of the major areas of discussion during the meeting was the need to improve coordination between the Railway Protection Force and the Government Railway Police. Officials stressed the importance of better information-sharing systems to ensure effective monitoring and rapid response across railway zones.

During the review, officials noted that preliminary investigations into several recent incidents, including some fire-related cases, had indicated the possible involvement of anti-social elements. Indian Railways has taken these incidents seriously, and the Railway Protection Force is currently conducting detailed investigations into the matter.

An official statement released after the meeting said that in several instances, timely intervention and proactive measures taken by railway authorities had helped prevent potentially serious situations from escalating further.

The ministry also discussed ways to encourage greater public participation in maintaining security across railway premises. Officials said passengers can play an important role in identifying suspicious behaviour or activities during travel and while waiting at stations.

Passengers were urged to remain alert and immediately report any suspicious person, unattended object, or unusual activity through the Railway helpline number 139. Authorities believe that increased public vigilance, combined with modern technology and intelligence systems, can significantly improve railway security.

The meeting further emphasised the expansion of CCTV surveillance across railway stations and railway property throughout the country. Officials also discussed upgrading the technical specifications of cameras to improve monitoring quality and enhance real-time analysis capabilities. A major focus was placed on strengthening cyber security systems within Indian Railways, especially as the organisation increasingly relies on digital infrastructure and technology-based operations.

Enriched uranium must remain inside Iran: Mojtaba

'Israel will not consider the conflict resolved unless Iran's enriched uranium is removed, its ballistic missile program is dismantled'

DUBAI

The reported order from Ayatollah Mojtaba Khamenei marks a significant hardening of Iran's position on one of the key demands made by the United States during peace negotiations.

Washington and Israel have insisted that Iran's highly enriched uranium stockpile be removed from the country as part of any final agreement aimed at reducing regional tensions and preventing the development of nuclear weapons.

According to the Iranian sources, the Supreme Leader believes that transferring the uranium abroad would weaken Iran's security and leave the country exposed to future military pressure from both the United States and Israel.

The sources, who spoke anonymously due to the sensitivity of the issue, said there is broad agreement among senior Iranian officials that the stockpile must remain under Iranian control.

Israeli officials have reportedly said that U.S. President Donald Trump assured Israel that any peace deal would include provisions requiring Iran to export its enriched uranium.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has repeatedly stated that Israel will not consider the conflict resolved unless Iran's enriched uranium is removed, its ballistic missile program is dismantled, and its support for regional proxy militias comes to an end.

Iran has consistently denied accusations that it is attempting to develop nuclear weapons. However, Western countries, including the United States and Israel, have expressed concern over Tehran's decision to enrich uranium to 60 percent purity, a level much higher than required for civilian energy purposes and much closer to weapons-grade enrichment levels of around 90 percent.

A fragile ceasefire currently remains in place after weeks of escalating military conflict that began with U.S.-Israeli strikes on Iranian targets on February 28. Iran later responded by targeting Gulf states hosting American military bases, while clashes also intensified between Israel and the Iran-backed Hezbollah group in Lebanon.

Despite diplomatic mediation efforts led by Pakistan, negotiations have made little progress. Tensions remain high due to the ongoing U.S. blockade of Iranian ports and Tehran's strategic control over the Strait of Hormuz, one of the world's most important oil shipping routes. Analysts warn that disagreements over Iran's uranium stockpile could become a major obstacle to achieving a lasting peace agreement in the region.

Russia holds nuclear drills amid rising tensions with NATO

MOSCOW

Russia on Thursday intensified its military signalling toward the West by delivering nuclear munitions to facilities in Belarus and showcasing elements of its strategic nuclear forces during large-scale military exercises.

The Russian defence ministry announced that nuclear munitions had been delivered to field storage facilities connected to a missile brigade stationed in Belarus as part of ongoing nuclear force exercises.

The large-scale drills, described as some of Russia's most significant nuclear exercises in recent years, involve around 64,000 military personnel and are focused on preparing and using nuclear forces in the event of external aggression.

During the exercises, Russia displayed several strategic military assets, including a Borei-class nuclear-powered ballistic missile submarine, Il-38 anti-submarine aircraft, MiG-31 fighter jets armed with Kinzhal hypersonic missiles, and RS-24 Yars intercontinental ballistic missiles. The exercises also involve Russia's Strategic Missile Forces, the Northern and Pacific fleets, long-range aviation units, and military formations from the Leningrad and Central military districts.

The military activities are taking place against the backdrop of the continuing conflict in Ukraine

According to the Russian military, a missile unit in Belarus is also practising the handling and loading of special munitions for the mobile Iskander-M tactical missile system. Although Russian nuclear drills typically use dummy warheads for training purposes, the public display of strategic weapon systems is being viewed as a strong message directed toward NATO and Western governments.

Videos released by the Russian defence ministry showed military vehicles transporting equipment, as well as submarines, aircraft, and warships participating in the drills. The exercises, which began on Tuesday across Russia and Belarus, are scheduled to continue for three days.

The military activities are taking place against the backdrop of the continuing conflict in Ukraine, which Moscow has repeatedly described as an existential confrontation with the West.

Since the beginning of the war, Russian President Vladimir Putin has frequently highlighted Russia's nuclear capabilities while warning Western nations against expanding military support for Ukraine. Kyiv and several Western leaders have criticised such statements, accusing Moscow of using nuclear threats to intimidate its opponents. At the same time, tensions have increased in the Baltic region.

Pak pushes fresh US-Iran talks as nuke deal framework takes shape

DUBAI

Pakistan increased diplomatic efforts on Thursday to accelerate peace negotiations between the United States and Iran as tensions over Tehran's nuclear programme continued to rise.

More than six weeks after a fragile ceasefire took effect between Iran, the United States, and Israel, negotiations aimed at ending the conflict have shown little meaningful progress.

The prolonged uncertainty has contributed to rising global oil prices, increasing inflationary pressure and creating fresh concerns for the international economy.

The ongoing energy crisis has also become a political issue in the United States. President Trump is facing growing domestic pressure ahead of the November midterm elections, with recent polls indicating that his approval ratings have fallen close to their lowest levels since his return to the White House. Analysts say rising fuel prices have become a major concern for American voters and are influencing the administration's urgency in seeking a diplomatic breakthrough.

According to three sources familiar with the negotiations, Pakistan's Army Chief General Asim Munir was expected to decide on Thursday whether he would travel to Tehran to support mediation efforts between the two sides. The sources, who requested anonymity because they were not authorised to speak publicly, said Pakistan has been actively working to improve communication channels and speed up negotiations.

Pakistan's interior minister visited Tehran as part of the broader diplomatic effort. One source involved in the discussions said Islamabad was engaging with different groups inside Iran to streamline communication and help move talks forward more quickly.

The source also acknowledged concerns over President Trump's increasingly impatient approach toward the negotiations. According to the source, Pakistan is attempting to manage the pace at which messages are exchanged between Tehran and Washington in order to avoid further escalation.

Iran's ISNA news agency reported that General Munir was expected to travel to Tehran for consultations regarding the framework of a possible agreement. Discussions are reportedly focused on broad principles, confidence-building measures, and guarantees that could support a future peace arrangement.

However, the negotiations suffered another setback after two senior Iranian sources revealed that Tehran had adopted a firmer position regarding one of the key U.S. demands linked to Iran's nuclear programme.

Finland's massive bomb shelters draw world to Helsinki

HELSINKI

Visiting mayors from Ukrainian cities took pictures inside an enormous cave carved in the bedrock below the Finnish capital, taking in the size and the possibilities of a space that can accommodate 6,000 people.

They are among around 800 foreign delegations who have visited Helsinki's Merihaka civil shelter - the biggest of the country's dual-use shelters and now a major shop window for Finnish companies looking to export to buyers concerned about the war in Ukraine and, increasingly, the conflict with Iran.

At 71,000 cubic metres, the shelter is roughly the volume of a seven-storey office building. It was built in 2003 and has sports pitches, a gym and a children's playground 25 metres (80 ft) underground that are in use daily.

Should it be needed in an emergency, it can be converted with stores of bunk beds, water tanks and portable toilets within 72 hours.

As well as being a testament to Finland's painful history with neighbouring Russia during World War Two, building such shelters remains mandatory underneath residential and commercial buildings of a certain size.

With that requirement, Finnish companies are skilled in their construction and upkeep - such as fitting and maintaining radiation-proof doors, ventilation equipment and emergency power, as well as communications and sewerage networks.

Politicians, administrators and businesses from overseas, such as oil giant Saudi Aramco, have all sought information or visits, authorities and companies involved said.

Resilience Center Finland, an exports body established in March, said Finland's security and defence exports stood at tens of billions of euros, with shelter sales amounting to some dozen million euros, with significant growth potential.

Within two years we won't need to compete fiercely with our peers over getting a gig. Rather, it will very soon be a question of capacity running out, Ilkka Kivisaari, CEO of Finnish-Swiss-owned Verona Shelters Group, said, citing high demand in countries such as Poland and Germany and high interest from the Middle East.

Merihaka is among 48 big and 5,500 smaller shelters in Helsinki - among 50,500 constructed around the country, the legacy of a Soviet invasion attempt during World War Two.

Merz pitches 'associate' EU membership for Ukraine

BRUSSELS

German Chancellor Friedrich Merz has proposed giving Ukraine a direct role in European Union structures as an interim step to EU membership that he said could help facilitate a deal to end the war triggered by Russia's invasion. In a letter to EU leaders seen by Reuters, Merz suggested Ukraine could be granted a new status of associate member that would allow Ukrainian officials to take part in EU summits and ministerial meetings but not vote in them. The German leader also proposed that EU members make a political commitment to apply the bloc's mutual assistance clause to Ukraine in order to create a substantial security guarantee.

Ebola case confirmed in rebel-held Congo

KINSHASA

A case of Ebola has been confirmed in eastern Democratic Republic of Congo's South Kivu province - hundreds of kilometres from the outbreak's epicentre - the rebel alliance that controls the area said on Thursday.

The case in a rural area near the provincial capital of Bukavu marks an expansion of an outbreak that experts believe circulated for around two months in Ituri province, several hundred kilometres to the north, before being detected last week. The Alliance Fleuve Congo, which includes the Rwanda-backed M23 rebels who seized swathes of eastern DRC last year, said in a statement that the 28-year-old patient had died and been buried safely.

It said the person had come from the northern city of Kisangani, in Tshopo province, but it did not provide details about their recent movements.

The World Health Organization at the weekend declared the outbreak of the virus' Bundibugyo strain, for which there is no vaccine, a public health emergency of international concern.

The outbreak has been linked to 139 deaths and there were 600 suspected cases in eastern DRC's Ituri and North Kivu provinces, according to the WHO. Two cases have also been confirmed in neighboring Uganda.

South Kivu health spokesperson Claude Bahizire told Reuters earlier on Thursday that two suspected cases, including the patient who died, had been detected in the province. The other patient was in isolation awaiting test results, he said.

Last week, an Ebola case was confirmed in M23-held Goma, the capital of neighbouring North Kivu province.

M23 said earlier this week that it was committed to working with international partners to contain the outbreak.

Record 274 climbers scale Everest in one day

KATHMANDU

A record number of 274 climbers scaled Mount Everest, a hiking official said, the highest number ever to reach the world's tallest peak on the same day from the Nepali side.

The 8,849-metre (29,032 feet) Everest straddles the border between Nepal and the Tibet region of China and can be climbed from both sides.

Expedition operators say there were no climbers on the Tibetan side this year as Chinese authorities had not issued any permits.

Rishi Bhandari, secretary general of the Expedition Operators Association of Nepal, said on Thursday that the previous highest number of ascents from the Nepali side was 223, on May 22, 2019.

The record for the most people to reach the Everest peak from both sides was set on the next day – May 23, 2019 – when 354 climbers made it, according to Guinness World Records.

This is the highest number of climbers in a single day so far, Bhandari told Reuters, referring to the Nepali record, adding the number could rise as some climbers who had reached the summit might not have informed the base camp about their feat yet.

There are no figures available from China on how many climbers reach the peak when the Tibetan side is open, but Bhandari said in the normal climbing season of April and May, about 100 people head to Everest from that side.

Department of Tourism official Himal Gautam said he had received preliminary information that more than 250 people climbed the peak.

We wait for climbers to return, give us photographs and other evidence to prove their ascents and provide them with climbing certificates, Gautam told Reuters. Only then we will be able to confirm the numbers.

Nepal has issued 494 permits to climb Everest this year, each costing $15,000.

Mountaineering experts often criticise Nepal for allowing large numbers of climbers on the mountain, which sometimes leads to risky traffic jams or long queues in the so-called death zone area below the summit, where the level of natural oxygen is dangerously below what is required for human survival.

Nepal has acknowledged risks from congestion and inexperienced climbers by introducing tighter controls and higher fees.

Watson praises spinner Varun Chakaravarthy

KKR assistant coach Shane Watson praised spinner Varun Chakaravarthy for playing through a hairline foot fracture against Mumbai

KOLKATA

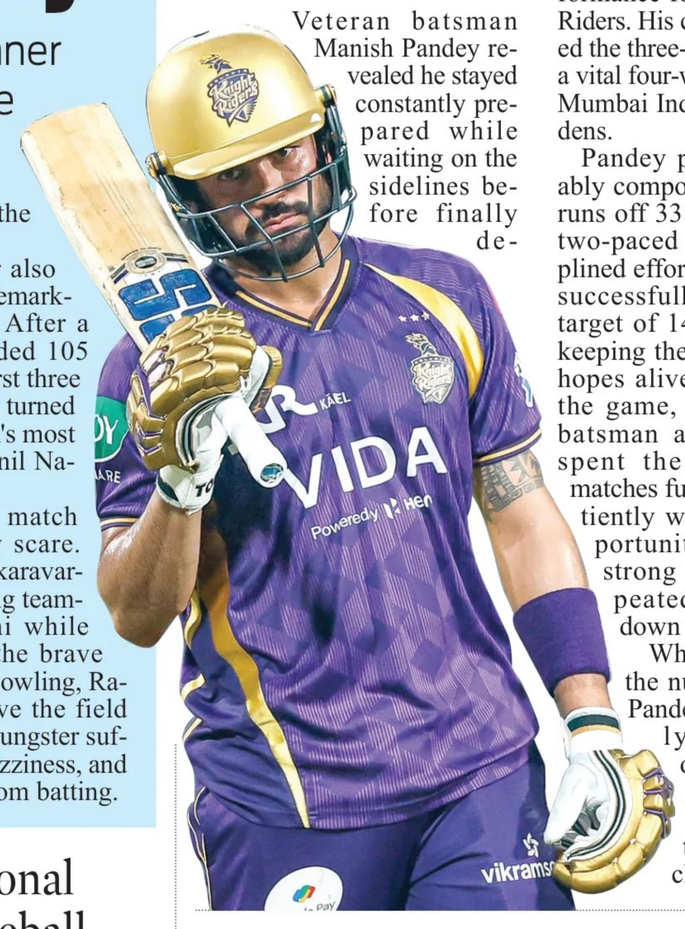
Kolkata Knight Riders assistant coach Shane Watson has showered praise on mystery spinner Varun Chakaravarthy for his incredible bravery. Following a crucial victory against Mumbai Indians, Watson revealed that the talented bowler has been playing through intense physical pain to help keep his team's tournament dreams alive.

Despite managing a reported hairline fracture in his left foot, Chakaravarthy delivered a beautifully disciplined, economical spell of 0/28 over four overs during a tense, rain-shortened match. Watson admitted he was unsure of the spinner's exact rehab timeline but commended his deep desperation to contribute. He noted that Chakaravarthy could have easily chosen to rest, making his willingness to push through the discomfort highly fortunate for the franchise.

The former Australian star also highlighted Chakaravarthy's remarkable comeback this season. After a rough start where he conceded 105 runs without a wicket in his first three games, the spinner completely turned things around to become KKR's most reliable weapon alongside Sunil Narine.

However, the high-stakes match also brought a major injury scare. During the eleventh over, Chakaravarthy collided heavily with young teammate Angkrish Raghuvanshi while completing a catch. While the brave spinner managed to continue bowling, Raghuvanshi was forced to leave the field later. Watson confirmed the youngster suffered from severe neck pain, dizziness, and a headache, preventing him from batting.

Manish Pandey grabs chance to save KKR



Manish Pandey's patient, composed 45-run knock after four games on the sidelines guided Kolkata Knight Riders to a vital four-wicket playoff-boosting win over Mumbai

KOLKATA

Veteran batsman Manish Pandey revealed he stayed constantly prepared while waiting on the sidelines before finally delivering a match-winning performance for Kolkata Knight Riders. His crucial knock guided the three-time champions to a vital four-wicket victory over Mumbai Indians at Eden Gardens.

Pandey played a remarkably composed innings of 45 runs off 33 balls on a tricky, two-paced pitch. His disciplined effort allowed KKR to successfully chase down a target of 148 in 18.5 overs, keeping their intense playoff hopes alive. Speaking after the game, the experienced batsman admitted he had spent the previous four matches fully padded up, patiently waiting for an opportunity as the team's strong batting form repeatedly pushed him down the batting order.

When finally handed the number three spot, Pandey adjusted quickly. He credited opening partner Ajinkya Rahane for guiding him through the tense chase. The duo focused heavily on watching the ball closely and building steady partnerships. Crucial stands between Pandey and Rahane, and later with power-hitter Rovman Powell, successfully brought the equation down to a comfortable 25 runs needed off the final 25 balls.

Earlier in the match, KKR's disciplined bowling unit did an excellent job restricting Mumbai Indians to a modest 147/8. Later, Powell's quickfire 40 and Rinku Singh's winning boundary sealed the chase. Pandey emphasized that trusting his daily fitness routine and domestic cricket practice prepared him perfectly to grab this vital opportunity with both hands when his team needed it most.

SALIMA TETE LEADS INDIA FOR AUSTRALIA TOUR

BENGALURU

The Indian women's hockey team, captained by Salima Tete, departed for a crucial tour of Australia. The squad will play four highly competitive matches against the powerful hosts in Perth on May 26, 27, 29, and 30 at the local hockey stadium.

This tour offers a brilliant opportunity for the Indian team to test their skills and tactical strategies against one of the top-ranked sides in international hockey. Immediately after concluding their games in Australia, the team will fly to Auckland, New Zealand, to compete in the FIH Hockey Women's Nations Cup, happening from June 15 to 21.

Skipper Salima expressed immense confidence in her squad before boarding the flight, calling the Australian series a massive stepping stone. She revealed that the players underwent intense training camps focusing deeply on physical fitness, on-field combinations, and structural discipline. Salima emphasized that playing the mighty Australians on their own turf is exactly the tough challenge India needs to prepare for upcoming mega-events like the Asian Games and the World Cup.

With the crucial Nations Cup right around the corner, the team is desperate to build positive momentum, fine-tune their weaknesses, and develop into a cohesive playing unit. Every single match in Perth will act as an important performance marker. The Indian side is highly focused on peaking at the right time, using these high-stakes international matches to gain valuable experience and bring glory back home.

National Pickleball selection trials in Ahmedabad

AHMEDABAD

The Indian Pickleball Association (IPA), in collaboration with the Sports Authority of India, has announced that it will host national selection trials for the junior and sub-junior teams next month. The crucial three-day selection event is scheduled to take place in Ahmedabad from June 12 to 14. The upcoming selection rounds will determine the official youth squad representing India at the prestigious third edition of the Pickleball World Cup. Sanctioned by the Global Pickleball Federation, the mega international tournament will take place in Vietnam from August 30 to September 9.

More than 100 passionate young players from various states, including Delhi, Maharashtra, Haryana, and Gujarat, are traveling to Ahmedabad. These athletes are competing heavily for a golden opportunity to represent the nation in the competitive Under-14 and Under-18 tournament categories. A prominent selection panel consisting of experienced sports figures, including IPA Chief Executive Officer Aditya Khanna, will closely monitor the matches to spot the best talent.

Jwala Gutta flags India's poor bench strength

NEW DELHI

Indian badminton icon Jwala Gutta has strongly criticized what she calls a growing culture of silence and compromise within the country's sporting system. In an interview, the World Championship bronze medalist questioned why current and former players avoid speaking out against major structural problems.

Gutta pointed to India's worrying lack of bench strength as a primary sign of systemic failure. Comparing India to powerhouse China, she noted that if a Chinese world champion gets injured, another one is always ready to step up. She expressed deep disappointment that former athletes who have now joined sports associations are failing to push for necessary grassroots reforms.

The Commonwealth Games gold medalist shared her personal struggles running a non-profit badminton academy in Hyderabad. Gutta revealed that securing financial backing has been an uphill battle because she refuses to play political games for influence. She believes her outspoken nature has unfortunately distanced her from the current sporting establishment.

Reflecting on her playing days, Gutta recalled having to fund her own international trips despite being the national champion and world number five. She also touched upon recent frustrating comments by current doubles star Satwiksairaj Rankireddy regarding a lack of recognition. Gutta firmly believes that successful, privileged athletes have a social responsibility to advocate for the next generation. She credited her own family for giving her the immense courage to fight the federation during her career, urging others to find their voice.

The legendary batsman joins an elite coaching roster that already features Indian cricket stalwart Sourav Ganguly and former Australian all-rounder Shane Watson.

The partnership is designed to bridge the gap between grassroots talent and elite professional performance. By combining de Villiers' deep, real-world cricketing intelligence with Kabuni's cutting-edge artificial intelligence, the platform aims to make world-class coaching accessible to aspiring players globally.

Kabuni's technology transforms traditional net practice by using motion tracking and biomechanics to analyze player movements and ball data in real time. Rather than overwhelming young players with heavy spreadsheets, the system delivers intuitive visual, video, and voice cues. It operates on a "1% improvement" philosophy, focusing on small, immediate adjustments that yield massive technical gains over time. Young fans will soon get a taste of this elite system. Kabuni revealed that a nationwide tournament will launch this June for Indian players aged 12 to 16. Using the platform's AI metrics, participants will get to compete for a coveted opportunity to play directly under de Villiers' team.

"Cricket has always been about expression for me, finding new ways to solve problems and push limits," AB de Villiers said. "What Kabuni is building gives young players a platform to explore their game, trust their instincts, and develop naturally." Nimesh Patel, Founder and CEO of Kabuni, expressed immense excitement over the signing, stating that de Villiers' unique ability to creatively reimagine the game aligns perfectly with the platform's mission to technically and mentally empower the next generation of cricketers.

Harmanpreet Kaur targets dominant era for Indian cricket

NEW DELHI

Indian women's cricket captain Harmanpreet Kaur has declared that her team wants to make "winning a habit" as they prepare for the upcoming ICC Women's T20 World Cup in England. Reflecting on their historic Women's Cricket World Cup 2025 ODI title victory, Kaur believes the landmark win has permanently shifted the team's mindset from chasing history to building sustained global dominance.

Writing in her official ICC column, Kaur emphasized that India's maiden 50-over world title was a seminal moment that brought immense belief to young girls across the country. While acknowledging that the triumph has raised public expectations and added pressure, she described it as a "good kind of pressure" that forces the team to stay hungry and recreate their success on the T20 stage.

India's preparation for the mega event has been highly demanding, featuring a home sweep against Sri Lanka and a historic T20I series win in Australia, their first in a decade alongside a tough series defeat in South Africa. Kaur notes that these diverse experiences have provided invaluable lessons for a format where the margins for error are incredibly small. She hopes a victory in this tournament will officially signal the beginning of a dominant, consistent era for the Women in Blue.

The balanced Indian squad blends experienced core players with fearless young talent unearthed by the Women's Premier League (WPL), which Kaur credited for maturing players under high-stakes pressure. The tournament also marks an emotional return to England for the skipper, where her iconic unbeaten 171 against Australia in the 2017 World Cup semifinal originally transformed public perception of the women's game. Placed in Group A alongside heavyweights like Australia and South Africa, India will kick off their quest for glory with a blockbuster clash against arch-rivals Pakistan in Birmingham on June 14.

India–Nordic summit signals shift in global AI ruling power

India–Nordic Summit 2026 highlights India's rising role in global AI governance, strengthening cooperation on digital infrastructure, green tech, and inclusive technology frameworks.

NEW DELHI

The third India–Nordic Summit 2026, held in Oslo, has been described as a turning point in global technology governance, with India emerging as a co-architect of digital and artificial intelligence norms rather than a passive rule-taker, according to a report by India Narrative.

The summit brought together India and Nordic countries to deepen cooperation in areas such as artificial intelligence, digital public infrastructure, green technology and innovation-led economic growth.

Leaders from both sides framed the partnership as a strategic alignment aimed at building resilient supply chains, strengthening research ecosystems and developing shared digital frameworks.

Nordic countries highlighted India as a large-scale testbed for inclusive digital innovation, while Norway and its regional partners were seen as hubs of advanced green-tech expertise and governance models.

The collaboration is expected to generate both commercial opportunities and geopolitical stability in an increasingly fragmented global technology landscape.A key focus of the discussions was the governance of artificial intelligence.

The report noted that India is increasingly shaping its own AI governance framework and inviting participation from both developed and developing economies. This marks a shift from earlier periods when global rules were largely influenced by Western economies.

The India-led AI Impact Declaration, which emphasizes human-centric and inclusive AI development, was highlighted as a contrast to security-focused regulatory debates in regions such as the United States and the European Union.

The declaration prioritizes human capital development, equitable access to AI tools and democratization of digital technologies.

The summit also emphasized India's rapidly expanding digital public infrastructure, including systems such as Aadhaar, UPI and open digital APIs. These platforms now support large-scale financial inclusion and welfare delivery across the country and are increasingly being adapted internationally.

Officials and experts noted that stronger India–Nordic cooperation could also help diversify global supply chains away from overdependence on China while boosting innovation ecosystems in both regions. The summit concluded with a shared vision of strengthening long-term collaboration in technology, sustainability and digital governance.

Founded in 2002 by billionaire entrepreneur Elon Musk, SpaceX revolutionized the global space industry through reusable rocket technology, successful satellite launches, and ambitious interplanetary exploration projects.

India assures steady fuel supply across retail outlets

NEW DELHI

The Government of India has confirmed that there is no shortage of petrol, diesel, or liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) across retail outlets in the country.

Senior officials stated on Thursday that fuel supply remains stable and uninterrupted nationwide, and any petrol pumps restricting supply or dispensing reduced quantities are being closely monitored and addressed.

According to officials, the government is actively tracking feedback from petrol pumps across India to ensure smooth distribution of fuels. They emphasized that supply to all retail outlets is being fully maintained and that consumers should not face any disruption in availability.

Authorities also clarified that there has been no reduction in crude oil imports from Russia, ensuring that domestic refineries continue to receive adequate crude supplies for processing. This helps maintain steady production levels of petrol, diesel, and other petroleum products.

Officials noted that demand for diesel has increased in certain regions due to the ongoing agricultural harvesting season. Additionally, some consumers have shifted from private oil marketing companies to public sector fuel stations, which are perceived as offering more stable pricing. Institutional and commercial fuel sales have also moved towards retail pumps due to price differences.

The government recently announced a modest increase of ₹3.91 per litre in petrol and diesel prices, equivalent to a 4.4 per cent rise. Officials stated that this adjustment is significantly lower compared to global fuel price trends and follows a period of 76 days during which public sector oil companies absorbed rising crude costs.

They highlighted that fuel price increases in many other countries have been far sharper due to global crude oil volatility. Emerging markets and developed economies alike have seen higher percentage increases in petrol and diesel prices, with some countries experiencing rises exceeding 40 to 60%.

Officials reiterated that India's pricing adjustments remain among the most moderate globally, reflecting efforts to balance consumer protection with global market realities while ensuring long-term fuel supply stability.

RBI May transfer record dividend to govt FY26

NEW DELHI

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) is likely to transfer a record surplus dividend to the central government for the financial year 2025–26, with estimates ranging between ₹2.7 lakh crore and ₹3.5 lakh crore, according to a media report.

The report noted that the RBI's central board is scheduled to meet on Friday to decide on the final surplus transfer. If the payout reaches the upper end of projections, it would become the highest dividend ever paid by the central bank to the government.

In the previous financial year, the RBI transferred a record ₹2.69 lakh crore surplus to the Centre, making this year's expected payout a significant increase.

The rise in surplus is attributed to multiple factors, including gains from currency volatility, higher returns from foreign exchange operations, and improved investment income. A key contributor was the nearly 10 per cent depreciation of the Indian rupee against the US dollar during FY26, which boosted valuation gains on the RBI's foreign currency assets.

The central bank also reportedly benefited from active interventions in currency markets, including dollar sales aimed at stabilizing the rupee during periods of volatility. These operations helped generate additional income for the RBI.

India's foreign exchange reserves rose by around 3 per cent during FY26, reaching nearly $688 billion, further strengthening the RBI's financial position. Income from investments and currency issuance also added to the overall surplus.

Over the past three years, RBI dividend transfers to the government have increased more than threefold, becoming an important source of non-tax revenue for the Centre. Analysts note that these transfers play a significant role in supporting fiscal planning and government expenditure.

Earlier projections suggested that RBI dividend payouts could remain elevated in the coming year as well, though slightly lower than peak levels. However, the central bank has not yet issued an official statement confirming the final amount of the FY26 transfer.

India's pvt sector growth slips as geopolitical tensions weigh

NEW DELHI

India's private sector economy witnessed a marginal slowdown in May amid ongoing geopolitical tensions and global economic uncertainties, according to the latest HSBC Flash India PMI data released on Thursday.

The HSBC Flash India PMI Composite Output Index stood at 58.1 in May, slightly lower than April's 58.2 reading. Despite the dip, the index remained well above the 50-mark, indicating continued expansion in overall private sector activity.

The report showed that stronger growth in the services sector helped offset weaker performance in manufacturing activity. However, factory production and new order growth moderated during the month, contributing to the softer overall expansion.

HSBC chief India economist Pranjul Bhandari said manufacturing activity eased marginally as both output and new orders slowed. Export demand also weakened significantly, with new export orders recording their slowest expansion in 19 months. Manufacturers saw the second-slowest increase in international sales since September 2024.
